Welcome From The Owners

Welcome! We know you'll love this place, which was our home for ten wonderful years!

First, the space is amazing. We enjoyed the living room's tall ceilings, natural light and the tree outside that sprouts delicate white flowers every spring. The loft was very versatile - at different times it was our guest bedroom, gym, movie room, and office. Our favorite room was actually outside: we have many great memories of entertaining on the "upper deck", which has views of the Santa Cruz Mountains, downtown Palo Alto, and even the fireworks from Stanford!

Living on High Street, we rarely used our car. This location is an easy walk to groceries, drugstores, coffee shops, restaurants, Caltrain and movie theatres. We'd take evening walks to local restaurants, picnic in nearby Johnson Park, and visit the Palo Alto Farmer's Market on Saturdays. Weekend events like the art fair and May Fête parade were easy outings - no parking required! Our two parking spots in the garage made it convenient for friends to visit.

A huge perk was the guest unit attached to the complex. It's a 2 bedroom/2 bath unit where friends and family can stay when they visit (only $40 per night). Friends from SF could stay late for wine and conversation, then walk right over to their private unit for a good night's rest - it's as good as having two extra bedrooms. With upgrades to the guest unit bathroom and carpet this summer, it will be even better. The lower common area, remodeled just last year, can also be reserved for a larger gathering.
The community at High Street Solar is what we'll miss the most. It's a diverse group from all over the world. We socialize at one another's birthday parties, rely on one another to pick up the mail or water houseplants when we're out of town, and collectively take good care our common home.

We believe 229 High Street is really a special place. We know you'll enjoy making your new home here just as much as we did.
